Invitation to a press conference: 21 March 2017, 11am

First retrospective in Germany:

The Bauhaus Archiv / Museum für Gestaltung presents
“Jasper Morrison: Thingness”

Exhibition dates: 22 March to 23 October 2017

From 22 March until 23 October 2017 the Bauhaus Archiv / Museum für Gestaltung, Berlin, is showing “Jasper Morrison: Thingness”, the first German retrospective on the work of one of the world’s most renowned contemporary designers. Jasper Morrison has been designing all different sorts of everyday objects for the past 35 years: furniture, kitchen utensils, tableware sets and lamps, but also shoes, clocks, watches, mobile phones and a tram for the city of Hanover. Over the course of his career Morrison has worked for numerous well-known companies, including Alessi, Cappellini, Camper, Muji, Samsung and Vitra. For several of his designs he has received distinctions like the IF Transportation Design Prize and the Ecology Award.

During the process of developing his designs, the British designer occupies himself intensely with existing forms, materiality and the purpose of an object in order to find the perfect form for it. The atmosphere these products create within a room and maximum user comfort are important factors in this context. His designs are distinguished by their clear formal idiom.

This exhibition was developed in cooperation with Jasper Morrison and the CID (Grand-Hornu, Belgium).
